We are wonderfully pleased with our first week's business in Chicago. The weather has been threatening all week; most days have been wet and disagreeable; merchants on the street speak of the week as "a dull one," and

We Have Had "A Full House"

Ever since our Opening Day. And not alone did the people come to see us, but THEY BOUGHT—they bought liberally. We sold fully three times as many goods during our first week's business as we anticipated, a consummation for which we are devoutly thankful.

For the benefit of those who have not yet been to see us we quote the following as a few of the many bargains which will be placed on sale tomorrow (Monday) morning.

THE SUMMER SEASON.

IN AND ABOUT NEW-YORK CITY.

Everything Gone But Fun in the Saloon Season, in the Rest of the Native Country—"Rarey & Co." and "Like the Forest"—"The Arabian Nights" and other Attractions—Sunset Pictures of the New York Conservatory — Matters of Music.

What with "The Arabian Nights" at the Chicago Opera-House—a spectacular burlesque produced for the first time last night, and added elsewhere in this paper—the Italy company in Secby Saxon at Burley's, and the Barlow Sisters company at Bryant's, the summer season of amusements in this city may be said to be brilliantly inaugurated. The only two stock companies in the country are those directed by Mr. Daly and Mr. Palmer (for Wallack's has failed out of existence), and though from a business point of view it may seem unfortunate policy to go into opposition with another house in the same city, Messrs. Palmer and Daly have not for several years had such a chance to do it. Unless all the two organizations are managed with singular ill-judgment they must be able to struggle to a city top line of success and even to a handsome profit. The cool and breezy nights in this region are what make playgoing so much more pleasant during the summer months than in any other part of the country. Visitors will have their choice of a large variety of entertainments, ranging from out-door concerts and circuses up to the highest class of opera and comedy, and those who evidently prefer to work in or charming a western resort as Chicago to spending their holidays as lonely spectators of seeing others amusing.

Mr. Daly will maintain "Rarey & Co." at Booth's for "Love in Harness." The latter is a very commercial and unpretty affair, but necessarily is both ingenuity of plot and variety of humor. The success of the play is shown before the action is half over, and the moments that is not upon the toe-lights of seeing strangers often threatens to be even before. The personages are amusing, as it is themselves, but on account of the bubble that hold them, and there are consequently no opportunities for characteristic acting of such natural pleasure. Taking the Co.'s cake, and not only making the hour too closely for action and acting, the exciting acting may be excellent, and the artistic completeness of every detail is commendable.

Remembering such finished work as that of the Day company the collective force and skill of both the Palmer's must hold out fairest assurance to the utmost exertions of genuine art. We have spoken, who are to have character studies of our actors, Raymond, and Owens—Another Mr. Raymond, and Owens—Another Mr. Raymond, and Owens—Another Mr.

CHICAGO REAL ESTATE.

BOOK "BUILDING" AND CONTRACTS SEVEN PAGES.

Testing Opinions as to the Cause of the Present Condition of the Market—What the Latest Transactions Have Had to Do with It—Changes in Investment Demand Noted—A Few Words About Changing Buying Centers.

"The market presents all the elements that usually contribute to first-class trading," said a Washington street broker yesterday, "but the actual activity that we would naturally expect under these conditions is not present. Every man I meet is just the least bit on edge, and there is no end of rumors about good sales that are on the table, but as very often seems true most trading is being done behind doors are closed. I guess there is no doubt but the cause of the trading is just a little way ahead of us, and it will soon be reached. I know of a sale of over $500,000 in acres, another that will soon be closed of more than that much, a La Salle street deal just started on a $750,000 contract, and in every direction things seem to be shaping themselves for a first-class business. I presume the tension between the bulls and the bears will not help the real-estate business to any great extent, but up to this time I can't see that it has hurt it any, especially as the prices are concerned."

"That's all right," said another broker, to whom the last sentence of the above conversation was repeated, "but I can tell you that this trouble has hurt our business already, and will continue to hurt it just as long as it remains unsettled. Some of us, more hopeful than others, may be able to assure our outside clients that everything will be lovely in a short time, but those same clients read the newspapers as well as the brokers' letters, and they can see that nearly 40,000 men are directly affected by the stoppage of building, and that the situation is not apt to be brightly considered. I believe that there is capital normally for a settlement of the trouble and that the longer it lasts the more difficult it will be to get over, else capital is even now either for operation or permanent investments. But one thing is certain, and that is that the only remedy is enforcing confidence, and future is for the landlord to meet freely together and agree to clear up the mess that they have created. Should the result be favorable to the extent that confidence would be shortly restored, he does not doubt the approval of a speedy settlement of just such differences as this."

The popular opinion among real-estate men regarding the trouble between the employers of the Building Trades Council and the unions of the building trades is that the latter will be defeated in the end, but that the struggle will be a long and bitter one. The general opinion is that the unions will not be able to hold out much longer, as the funds in the treasuries of the various unions are getting low, and the men will be forced to go to work. There seems to be no end to the struggle in sight.

Chicago, June 5.—Editor of The Tribune: Sir: I am going to build a house on my lot on Kenwood, which is on the west side of the Boulevard, between 47th and 48th streets, and I am desirous of getting a contractor who will build me a good house for the least money. Can you tell me where I can find such a man? Yours truly, [illegible]

A Prevaricator.

According to the popular verdict, can the epithet be applied with impunity? Without fear or malice we say unhesitatingly the mantle should rest somewhere. Judging by the many highly-colored, flaming advertisements of dealers in Furniture it remains an undisputed fact that somebody is—inflating the truth.

It is almost the unanimous opinion, without a dissenting vote, that each and every dealer is the cheapest in the land—at least the newspaper "ads." say so. Each individual and firm claims the distinction (in print) of selling the cheapest Parlor Suit since the days of Adam.

Apropos of such contradictory evidence, don't you think there's "a nigger in the fence somewhere"?

A. H. REVELL & CO. advertise only bona-fide bargains. We refrain from idle bombast, and publish only the whole, unvarnished truth.

Accepting our arguments as a basis, we beg of you not to believe all we tell you—we don't expect you to believe one-half of it—but we do ask you in all honor and candor to step in and see the bargains we offer.

The system of selling every article at a small margin, but of a thoroughly reliable quality, has always been the ruling principle of this establishment.

Our New Catalogue Free.

COUNTRY CUSTOMERS

Will please send for our new Illustrated Catalogue (more a work of art than a catalogue), mailed free. We do this in order to assist buyers from outside the city in selecting articles of Furniture to be ordered by mail.

The prices quoted will always be the lowest, and at any time that there is the slightest change in prices when goods are ordered we shall return the difference by mail.

This is done that we may protect our customers and ourselves.

THE HUB

This week launches forth in a modest effort to convince Chicago Clothing buyers that

$15

Is a great deal more money than they ever had any idea it was. To drive this truth home The Hub tomorrow offers for $15 a line of Men's Fine Business and Dress Suits, never before equaled in this city under $20 and $22, and retailing today at exactly those figures. These consist of fine imported and domestic Scotch Cheviots, Bannockburns, fine weave Corkscrews, and narrow Wale Diagonals.

See these Suits, the materials, the trimmings, the style, the workmanship, and confess that $15 is more money than you ever thought it was.

Special Boys' Suit Sale at $5, ages 4 to 13, fine all-wool Cassimeres, Corkscrews, and Flannels, regular $7, $8, and $9 Suits. A special card for $5.

CAKES,

WARRANT FOR ARMOUR.

[illegible] MADE THAT HE HAS BEEN GUILTY OF A CRIME.

The Warrant Issue—Not Even a Hint but the Matter Kept Quiet Till Saturday, When It Was Made Public Probably to the Hope of Influencing the Wheat Market, Which Was Not Affected by It—The Complainant—Mr. Armour Is at Milwaukee.

Following a report that arrests had been made in Justice of the Peace for the arrest of Mr. Philip D. Armour, on a charge of violating the section of the Criminal Code which makes it an offense to run a corner in order to get up the price of commodities, is being circulated that Mr. Armour was a corner in pork last month. It has not been proved and very likely never will be. It is claimed that the object of this sensational step is to affect the wheat market, beat down the price, buy all the wheat and fight the combination which is supposed to be running the present market. In spite of much evidence tending to show that he has nothing to do with it, there are many who are firm in the faith that he is the man who is back of the whole combination here. Even those most of such belief admit that Mr. Armour would be loth to do anything which Mr. Armour would be for the part of those who had engineered and carried out the deal. The fact that a story of Mr. Armour being arrested was telegraphed to Cincinnati, San Francisco and Eastern points early in the day, at a time when it was not known here that any complaint had been made, indicates that a desire to influence the market was at least one of the reasons for beginning with. There does not appear to be enough for Mr. Armour and his attorneys, and also for the bail bonds, to fill the bottomless story that we are now to be told, confidently, and at any moment, that Mr. Armour is under arrest. And to top it off, another and yet more sensational story was put out that Mr. Armour had been arrested, locked up, and was then released on bail. Mr. Armour is not under arrest, has not been arrested, and has not been locked up, nor released on bail. Mr. Armour is at Milwaukee, and will be there over Sunday. He will return to Chicago on Monday morning, and will be at his office at the usual hour. He has no intention of leaving the city, and has no fear of arrest. He has not been arrested, and will not be arrested. He has not been locked up, nor released on bail. He has not been arrested, and will not be arrested. He has not been arrested, and will not be arrested. He has not been arrested, and will not be arrested

A SPIRITED CAMPAIGNING AT CENTRAL MUSIC HALL LAST NIGHT.

Messrs. Forbes, Waterman, Williamson, Wentworth, Dubois, and Gilbert Warmly Indorsed—Speeches Made by Leonard Swett, John N. Jewett, Robert Isham Scott, and H. W. Fuller—Also, Notes on Aurora Forest Hall—Meetings on West Twelfth Street and North Avenue.

A large meeting of citizens of all shades of politics, except that which is represented by August Spies and his companions in the County Jail, was held last night at Central Music Hall in the interest of the Citizens' Association which proves party to be an association of justice. The body of the auditorium was crowded, and the galleries were completely filled. Among the audience were a number of ladies who took an equal part with the gentlemen present in the applause which frequently interrupted the speakers. Upon the platform and in the body of the hall, among others, were: Leonard Swett, Robert T. Lincoln, John M. Harding, Melville W. Fuller, L. E. Holmes, John B. Jewett, Charles Eyre, Julius Rosenthal, Moses J. Wentworth, City Clerk Anderson, United States Collector A. H. Seargeant, John C. Richberg, James H. Leslie, Jacob Rosenau, William J. Onahy, Henry Greenebaum, Judge Henry Booth, W. J. Onahan, and William T. Baker. The meeting was called to order a few minutes after 8 o'clock by the Hon. Melville W. Fuller, who announced as President the Hon. Leonard Swett. Mr. Swett was enthusiastically received, and when he came forward to take the presiding officer's chair was greeted with applause.

The Vice-Presidents elected for the meeting were: Ex-Governor Joseph Medill, Judge Murray F. Tuley, Hon. John Lyle Harmon, Hon. Carter H. Harrison, Hon. Abner Taylor, Hon. Lambert Tree, Hon. Wirt Dexter, Hon. Thomas B. Bryan, Hon. Edward Rosewater, Hon. Lyman J. Gage, Hon. Samuel Ashton, Hon. Lyman Trumbull, Hon. Joseph Medill, Hon. Potter Palmer, Hon. Levi Z. Leiter, Hon. FASTMAN

DEATH OF W. A. WHEELER

THE EX-VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES DEAD.

He Ills Called to a Peaceful Home—Incidents in the Last, He Talks Into the Eternal Sleep Without a Word of Parting—A Review of His Career—The Funeral to Be Held Tuesday from Queen S. Ayres, Lincoln's Attorney-General, Dying.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—William A. Wheeler died at his home in Malone at 12 o'clock this morning. He continued in a comatose state during the night and expired without a sign of recognition of those about him. His death was painless and life went out as gradually and quietly that it was hard to mark the exact moment of its flight. Mr. Wheeler, whose vitality had been decreasing slowly through the past six years, retained his usual vigor up to perhaps six months ago. From that date he failed rapidly. He was natural activity to insomnia and neuralgia, and was also afflicted with cancer of the bladder. The night of the 1st of March last he was seized with a chill, followed by a sinking spell and then by fever, and for hours his physicians thought his dying. He never fully rallied from that attack and small and daily ended away together. There has probably been suffering of the brain, and for weeks he was irrational. This brain affection was the immediate cause of death. Monday last he sank into a state of unconsciousness from which he was never fully aroused for a moment or two. Since Wednesday he has not spoken, nor given any sign of recognition of friends by whom was going on around him. He had no near relatives in the world to minister to him during his illness or watch by his death-bed. A number of his wife's relatives and friends were promptly around to testify when the last hour came.

The approach of death was so gradual that it causes no pain; death came to Malone his home, though there is universal sorrow among the people. Flags are at half-mast and evidences of mourning are displayed. The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock Tuesday, June 7, at the Congregational Church, with a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Goodrich. Before the funeral a meeting of citizens will be held in Malone, to which time a committee appointed to go through the state to call County meeting at which the people will testify their appreciation of the life and work of the deceased statesman. The following telegram was received to-day:

FREMONT, O., June 4.—Mrs. Hayes and I have learned with profound sorrow of the death of your husband. Mr. Wheeler I will always cherish with the warmest regard.

R. B. HAYES.

Vice-President Wheeler was born in Malone, Franklin County, N. Y., June 30, 1819. His father, Daniel Wheeler, was a native of Vermont, who had settled in Malone in 1807. The family was of English descent. Mr. Wheeler's mother was Miss Clarissa Austin, a daughter of Judge Austin, of Burlington, Vt. The subject of this sketch was the youngest of a family of seven children. He was prepared for college at the Malone Academy, and entered the University of Vermont at Burlington in 1838, graduating in 1842. He then began the study of law in the office of Hon. Azariah C. Flagg, at Plattsburgh, N. Y., and was admitted to the bar in 1845. He began the practice of his profession at Malone, and remained there until 1850, when he removed to Keeseville, Essex County, where he resided until 1858. During this period he represented his district in the State Assembly for two years, and was also elected to the State Senate for a term of four years. In 1858 he removed to Westport, Essex County, where he resided until 1877. He was elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving a majority of 1,000 votes over Hon. Orsamus B. Matteson, Democrat, and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress by a majority of 1,200 votes over Hon. Henry C. Martin, Democrat. He was a member of the Committee on Ways and Means during the Thirty-seventh Congress, and was appointed by President Lincoln a member of the Electoral Commission which counted the votes for President and Vice-President in 1876. He was also a member of the Forty-third Congress, and was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 17,000 votes against 15,000 votes for Hon. Lyman Tremain, Democrat. He was a member of the Forty-fifth Congress, and was elected to the Forty-six

AMERICAN BOWLING INTERESTS NOW TO PLAY BALL.

Sports Has Its Magnificent Week and Ends by a Score of 5 to 1.—Pittsburg, Boston, and Washington Victors.—Twin Cities Take the St. Louis Derby.—Closing Day of the Latonia Races.—Jockeys and Trainers Complaining.—The Tennis Game Boston Carnival Notes.

(Special Dispatch to The Record.)

CHICAGO, Ill., June 1.—(Special.)—Lack of good pitched games of ball characterized yesterday's baseball contests. The attendance was, however, large, and the weather was ideal. Pittsburg and Boston were the victors, the former defeating Chicago and the latter Washington. Cincinnati and St. Louis, for all we know, may have played ball, but if they did it was outside the limits of Chicago's baseball interest. Chicago's pitching was very ineffective, and the visitors batted with great freedom. Pittsburg's fielding was also poor, but the visitors' batting was very timely. Washington and Boston played ball for the home club.

Leonard was first to the bat. Quinn was the only man to reach first, he being given that privilege by Williamson's muscle, but Quinn was left there by Leonard's failure to accept Dahlen's offer. The Chicago fielding opened with a triple play. Lange to Williamson to White. Quinn was started by Williamson for White, Dahlen, and Donohue. Further runs were not to be gotten until Leonard made a hit.

In the second inning Hahn got his base on balls after two were down, and then left on Beckley's fly to Dahlen. Burns got on by Quinn's error, and got as far third by Leonard's single, but was left there by Williamson's fly to Lange. Pittsburg batted in order in the third inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the fourth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

In the fifth inning Pittsburg batted out a run. Leonard's single, Wilmot's double, and Hahn's fly to Quinn. Beckley struck out, Burns was thrown out by Williamson, and Leonard was caught at the plate by Kling. Chicago batted in order in the fifth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the sixth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the sixth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the seventh inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the seventh inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the eighth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the eighth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the ninth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the ninth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg

Summary—Two-base hits, Wilmot, Leonard; sacrifice hits, Lange, Williamson; stolen bases, Leonard, Wilmot, Beckley, Burns, Hahn; double plays, Lange to Williamson to White, Quinn, Williamson, Donohue; first base on balls, off Hahn 1; left on bases, Pittsburg 5, Chicago 4; time of game, 1:40; umpire, Emslie.

Synthesis of Friday's Games.

(Special Dispatch to The Record.) Pittsburg had the best of the argument with Chicago yesterday, but was not able to win from the latter team by a great deal. Those who saw Leonard's batting on the previous day, when he made a home run and a two-base hit, were disappointed to see him retired in order in the first inning. Wilmot's double, Hahn's fly to Quinn, Beckley's strike out, Burns's fly to Williamson, and Leonard's fly to Lange, retired the side. Pittsburg batted in order in the second inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the second inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the third inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the third inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the fourth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the fourth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the fifth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the fifth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the sixth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the sixth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the seventh inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the seventh inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the eighth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the eighth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Pittsburg batted in order in the ninth inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Chicago batted in order in the ninth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Washington, 0; New York, 5.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.—The gentlemen who are supposed to represent New York in baseball circles played here this evening and defeated the home Washingtons and New York added another victory through good batting. The Washingtons were brilliant batting by Dahlen and the home team long suits. It was Dahlen's fine batting that gave the visitors a victory in the first game. Dahlen's home run, a two-bagger by Lange, and Dahlen's single, with Lange's sacrifice, netted the visitors five runs. Washington batted about evening honors enough for seven to score, but could do no more, stopping at second when Thompson would go home. It was an easy game for the visitors. Rusie or Thompson and the latter was brought in the game. Chicago batted in their turn, but Rusie was master of the situation. Washington batted in order in the first inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

New York batted in order in the second inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Washington batted in order in the third inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

New York batted in order in the fourth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Washington batted in order in the fifth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

New York batted in order in the sixth inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Washington batted in order in the seventh inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

Baltimore, 0; Philadelphia, 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 1.—With the exception of Hoyt's two hard chances would be about nothing with Baltimore batting. Only three of the home men made hits off Hoyt, and the latter was then three of the four were retired from second base by hitting the ball into the hands of Reitz. In the last inning Hoyt was in trouble and Pinkney made another hit, but was forced out at second by Reitz. Baltimore batted in order in the first inning, retiring in one, two, three order. Philadelphia batted in order in the first inning, retiring in one, two, three order.

THE CITY.

PERSONAL.

G. S. Burlington and wife have just returned from their wedding trip to New York and the East, and will be at home hereafter in Oneida Co. Mr. Odebrecht lamented.

The friends of Dr. John Alexander of Trinity Methodist Church discovered on the morning his wife that he hadn't the heart for any fun, and made him up a purse of $1,000, which found its owners, and paid the bills. Dr. Alexander leaves for a trip to Europe. Dr. A. is a gentleman highly esteemed in this city, and the congregation under his pastorate will greatly regret his departure.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Sale, minister of the Reformed Episcopal Church, Ashland avenue, corner of Twenty-sixth street, and Rev. Hugo Mecum, pastor of the German Reformed Church, Ashland avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets, will exchange pulpits next Sunday morning. Dr. Sale has been the pastor of the church for five years, and during that time has gathered around him a large and influential congregation. Mr. Mecum has been in charge of the German Reformed Church for a few months, and has already succeeded in building up a large congregation. Both gentlemen are highly esteemed by their congregations, and will, no doubt, be greeted by full houses.

IN GENERAL.

The graduating exercises of the class of '64 at St. Stephen's School will take place next Thursday evening at the Church of the Epiphany.

The man Smith was not assaulted on the Eighteenth-street bridge, but on the viaduct, after all that the indignation would not have the evil.

The baby sea lion at Lincoln Park will be on exhibition today, as the tragedy which has heretofore hidden the youngster out to public view.

The special grand jury decided to work yesterday in securing further indictments against police officials. In connection with these, startling rumors were afloat last night, and are likely to be.

The temperance committee, as observed by Reason, agitates (Tribune Building) was on Saturday from 10 to 12, 12 to 2, 2 to 4, 4 to 6, 6 to 8, 8 to 10,

CANADA AND THE STATES.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD OPPOSED TO A RECIPROCITY TREATY.

He Wants to Renew the Old Reciprocity Treaty of 1855—Queries Objections to a Reciprocity Arrangement—What the Canadians Must Expect If They Do Not Take a Reasonable View of the Situation.

New York, June 8.—A special from Ottawa, Canada, gives the views of Sir John A. Macdonald on the question of commercial union. The special says: The Premier of Canada, Sir John A. Macdonald, or, as he is familiarly called, "the old man," stands in the same relation to the Dominion as Bismarck does to Germany, and as Disraeli did to England. Between him and Disraeli there are many points of similarity. Naturally aggressive as a politician, he can be conciliating to a degree that charms his enemy.

Unlike his colleagues in the Government, he contributes no inspiration to approaching a dangerous issue, but because it is dangerous does he attempt to bolster its importance. Last night he began quite a lengthy conversation on the question of commercial union between the United States and Canada with the announcement that he was in favor of preferential trade between the two countries. He said:

I am in favor of such a reciprocity treaty as existed between the years of 1855 and 1866. I would favor anything that would promote friendly relations between Canada and the United States. I would go as far as any one to secure the most friendly relations between the two countries. I would favor any treaty which would promote trade between the two countries. I would favor any treaty which would promote trade between the two countries. I would favor any treaty which would promote trade

CARDINAL GIBBONS TO RAISE FUNDS OF CHURCH-CLAIMS AFFAIRS.

A Letter to the Catholic Total Fund Through Dr. Spalding's Contribution—Plans of Baptist Association Grant Interest Loans to Indianapolis Churches—Methodist Book Committee Urges Defining to Louisiana—Kansas City's Banking and Clearing Statistics.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 3.—[Special.]—In a letter from President Gibbons sent out for the signature of the several members here, and that great cathedral that still bears him. They are also due to the Maryland Bible Society, which proved a generous friend from which to borrow. "Gentlemen, I will have to be true to all you about the last letter I am to Europe." His speech has given an order to Rome, the seniors, for a copy of the London papers of February to be present to this city against the Peabody Institute. Baltimore was satisfactory management to the philanthropists, and Mr. Carnegie is considered that his industry shall not be forgotten.

Charles Sumner, a former resident, crossed over his wife, made up with her, have been, and an hour after had agreed to take with the wife of peacemaker. Sumner of all was David Chaney's passage to the bar and a friend and girl. He was caught by a policeman in the act of jumping off a bridge into the surrounding river. "I don't have her; I will be for her." So the story thought he said.

There appears to be some truth in the report that Cardinal Gibbons recently invited the to confer, to have a conference on the labor question with some of the leading Bishops of the country. It is learned on good authority that Mr. Gompers' work in the Gibbons field has made him friendly of friends and supporters among the Catholic laboring people. The Church leaders, it is understood, are anxious to counteract the influence of the Socialists

FROM CHURCH TO STAGE.

Actors Driven Who Have Graduated from the Choir-Loft.

Georgia Gerald's Experience as a Star—Did Boy-Choir Leading Injure the Reverend Sparks Complete Who Were Formerly Church Singers — Hagen — The Old Church-Choir Company Reformed, but Indefinitely Still on Hand—A Coming Chicago Tenor.

From the church to the stage seems a long step at the first thought of it, but to an observer there are any number of instances of its achievement. When people started a Chicago Miss's talking it, it is safe to say that very few of them present to realize the long succession of worldwide opera singers that have graduated from Chicago choirs; though, to be sure, the flight of the star singer from the echoes of religion is not of late to be wondered at when that of the minister himself, and of the organists today the successful and well-to-do, that there does not grace the [illegible] stage to-day a single singer of world renown, leading, originally, from the choir-loft, or even a part of his or her time while there was with the singing, or playing to one or more of the city's leading churches, or within the word "leading," is to say hardly the correct term to use in speaking of sacred services, for the art of singing in many of the churches has not been in a condition of the greatest of a Chicago religious congregation.

A church, then, as the headquarters of opera singers that have been recruited from the choirs brings to light an array of notable men and women as having been associated with work that was delightful and work that is even now famous. While it is proposed just now to deal with singers of Chicago extraction, it would hardly do to overlook the fact without a reference to George Gerald. Mr. Gerald, it is true, was for late in Chicago and has never filled an engagement in a Chicago church, but he has won much of his fame here and broke into song of the city to make his home here, as it never forgotten. Mr. Gerald is stated to be the first among Americans who, by the judgment of all, was entitled to be called a Theodore Thomas when the latter was leading musical circles for the supervision of the city to-day.

A BUSINESS-MAN'S CAREER

Sketch of the Life of Julius Wadsworth.

Owner of the Searchlight Bee in Chicago—His Early Reception—Founding of the First Womans Day Nursery Home in the City—His Interest in the Fielding Association—Connection with Reformatory and Public-Office Matters and Family.

Julius Wadsworth, who died May 28 at his country seat in Kalamazoo, Mich., was in early days honored mostly with the business and prosperity of Chicago, and, indeed, during the whole of a long career his life has been temporarily linked with the prosperity of the city and with some of the greatest interests of the Northwest. Mr. Wadsworth was born in Connecticut, in Watertown, seventy-three years ago. His father was a prosperous merchant and left to his son a heritage of comfort and a name.

Young Wadsworth, the eldest of several brothers, received a good common education in the old-fashioned English branches, and to his father's name inherited from one of the greatest advantages in his throughout life—a good business education. In 1856, at the age of 24, Mr. Wadsworth came West. He engaged at Chicago and was so impressed with the idea that the town was destined to be great, by reason of its position on the edge of a vast agricultural and commercial region, that he resolved to stay here, and accordingly about the middle of the year he picked his way to Chicago. He engaged at once in commercial pursuits, as an employe of others for a time, while getting the grasp of the town and the chances for business. In 1858 he joined a mercantile firm that soon afterward failed, and then he entered the employ of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, which had been organized a few years before, and which was then engaged in the construction of its original line. Mr. Wadsworth was with the road during the whole of the period of its construction, and was chief clerk of the land department at the time of the completion of the road to Cairo. He was then appointed assistant land commissioner, and was engaged in the sale of the company's lands in Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota, which were then being settled in large numbers. He remained with the road for a number of years, and was then appointed land commissioner of the Dubuque & Sioux City Railroad Company, which was then building its line from Dubuque to Sioux City. He was engaged in the sale of the lands of this company for a number of years, and was then appointed land commissioner of the Dubuque & Southwestern Railroad Company, which was building its line from Dubuque to Fairbury, Ill. This road was completed to Fairbury in 1870, and Mr. Wadsworth was then appointed land commissioner of the Chicago & Southwestern Railroad Company, which was building its line from Chicago to Kansas City. He was engaged in the sale of the lands of this company for a number of years, and was then appointed land commissioner of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company, which was building its line from Chicago to Council Bluffs. He was engaged in the sale of the lands of this company for a number of years, and was then appointed land commissioner of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad Company, which was building its line from Chicago to Minneapolis and St. Paul. He was engaged in the sale of the lands of this company for a number of years, and was then appointed land commissioner of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, which was building its line from Chicago to Burlington, Ia. THE QUEEN IN THE CITY.

SPECIAL PROGRAM DURING THE MISSION DISTRICT OF LONDON.

Unfavorable Comment on the Appearance of the Royal Pair at Assemblies—Delightful Scene at Buckingham Palace Re-Decently Opening Her Doors—Gathering of Beautiful Country Homes—The Visits of the Fourth Host and the Visiting Chiefs.

LONDON, May 21.—[Special Correspondence.]—Last Saturday Queen Victoria for the first time since her inauguration paid a visit to that part of London known as the "City." This is the business portion of London. The city embraces around the great Bank of England, the Royal Exchange, and the Stanton House, the residence of the Lord Mayor. These three buildings stand on what seems hence each other. Together it is the custom for the ruler of England to pay a yearly call in the city, stopping at the Mansion House for a call upon the Lord Mayor. Queen Victoria has never paid any attention to this custom, greatly to the displeasure of the business men of the city. She has completely ignored the strength of her kingdom, and she has to a great measure aided to its superiority. Saturday the Queen went and further than the city into Whitechapel, one of the poorest quarters of London. The occasion of her visit was the opening of the People's Palace, a large building which has just been completed for the pleasure of the poor people of that district. The area side of streets from the Palladium Station, where the Queen arrived at about 2 o'clock, to the Mile End road were decorated with banners and flags. The decorations were of a very simple kind, but they have been highly praised by the London papers for their elegance and their elaborate character. There was one feature of the decorations that might be considered a little scandalous. At the principal gate were placed each side of the Union arch, also of stone at a distance of about forty feet from each other. Every one of the pole was designed with a stone, and several pictures of the Queen, with a gold crescent lying above it. Some of the boys' enterprise could not refrain from a little fun at the expense of the Queen. The pictures of her Majesty in the Mile End road had not been up a hours until the inscriptions "Not much for Queen, who is an ailing gen," mentioned themselves were heard at along the line, too, upon the Queen's unfashionable and her recent absence from public ceremonies and her many journeys to Scotland a little more recently. There was an apparent effort not to see the royal procession. The people were filled the with curiosity. Hence they stayed in their dwellings and at points of vantage. The Queen's carriage passed through the streets with the blinds down, and the people, as a rule, were not to be seen. Occasionally a handful of people would gather together and cheer, but the Queen's carriage would pass through the streets with the blinds down, and the people, as a rule, were not to be seen. Buckingham Palace, which was opened on Saturday for the first time since the death of the Prince Consort, was the scene of a brilliant assemblage on Tuesday evening, when the Queen and Princess of Wales received their guests at a ball given in honor of the Duke and Duchess of York. The Queen was assisted by the Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Connaught, the Duchess of Fife, the Princess Victoria, the Princess Christian, the Princess Louise, the Princess Henry of Battenberg and Princess Alexandra of Schleswig-Holstein, with the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Fife, Prince Christian and the Duke of Argyll. The Prince Doctor and the Princess Christian rode with the Queen, the Princess of Wales and the Duke of York in the state carriage, the daughters riding with the Queen's equerries and the Duke of Argyll riding with the Duke of Connaught. The Queen's carriage was followed by the carriages containing the other members of the royal family and the Queen's household. Buckingham is both a winter and summer palace. In the summer, one lighting from the 1st of May to the last of July, and the other from the 1st of June to the 1st of October, the position is so favorable that it is warm in winter and cool in summer. The rooms are very high, with a good equity bench at least 10 feet. The grass grow so luxuriantly and the air is so soft that the place is highly recommended for those sensitive with hay fever. There are several large apartments in Buckingham, the largest being the Blue Room Room, which is the finest in the Queen's Palace. A Sad Experience with the Famous Singer—M. Lablanche's Farewell—He Will Reappear in 1898 with Patti and Melba—His Friend and Foe Gilbert—Queen Victoria Refuses the Academy—Burning Scenes Before the Academy—The Scientific Marvel of the Month.

PARIS, May 21.—[Special Correspondence.]—The announcement that M. Lablanche has been established for a year's engagement for Eugene has given rise to much gossip. Grisi, however, among the members of the bohemians and the social elite that throbbed in the reign of the Citizen King. To the present generation he was a nebulous. Yet to the Grisi's husband. What a world of reminiscence arises from those words! Grisi! She was the most brilliant songstress, perhaps the truly one ever known. No one who remembers her to her prime, when she sang with Mario, he to his prime, can ever have an ear for other singers, and she has been dead nearly twenty years, and her husband is a fossil. Grisi, the melancholy Jaques, and none upon the remembrance of life!

M. de Rémy was not the fact that he was an engraver at the shirt of engine and actresses to. When he married Giulia Grisi in 1835, he was a mere lad of 19. But he had a cool head and a steadfast heart. He arranged a one of the best families in Lombardy, and paid a considerable fortune. He married her in good faith, intending to let her pursue her brilliant career as an artist, but suggesting her to share the idyllic browsing in a wife. To be had old-fashioned notions on that score. He did not intend to make love to priests and hairdressers. Why, then, should he with accept the attendance of the wealthy young rakes who thronged the green-room of the opposite room, but irreproachable. There married life was a shorter one. She was artful and impetuous. He was old-fashioned, with recommendations of the darkening of the boyish skin. Then he became harsh and reproachful. Instead of complacently overlooking her admirers he put himself sternly to them and quarrelled with them. A collision was reached when Lord Castlereagh crossed his path. The Unlawful Passing Attention to a Victim of the Longhorn Band—Fine Misconstrued—The Informal Dining Compliment—A Beginner for Dancing Passengers on a Street Car—Why Good Cigars Are Smoked—A Few Advices for Dining Women.

The night of Saturday, March 13, 1897, the Longhorn Band, in Chicago, was turned. During the fun five persons lost their lives, one of whom was a widow whose name is not to us, Mrs. Smith. She was not known to have any friends in the city other than the casual acquaintance of a few of the guests of the house. Among the latter were a gentleman and his wife from New York named Brown, who, with their three children, were spending a few weeks in the Garden City. The body of Mrs. Smith was taken to the morgue, where it remained for several days without any one claiming it for burial. Finally Mr. Brown learned of the fact, where upon he purchased a suitable coffin and had the remains interred at his own expense. During the search of the room the Brown party were disturbed at the rear window. They were promptly greeted on the way and the occupants were disappointed. In the course of a week it was turned over to Mr. Brown, to keep the only person known to have intruded the first woman. It was found to contain, in addition to a woman's wearables, tools and other valuables appertaining to BURGLARY. Mr. Brown went quietly to work to find the heirs of the deceased, if any, that they might take their due. At the end of a year no one had even appeared, although the leading advertisements appeared in all the leading papers of the country.

But to the assertion at hand we pass and give Mr. Brown. The wife was very anxious for the time of her life, thanks to you, and gave the Longhorn Band a very generous order, and they the Longhorn Band a very generous order, and they the Longhorn Band a very generous order, and they Lions are as you will in the peopled desolations of cities they will call long for the green things of earth, for the smell of the veld, the company of trees, the greeting and taking of trysts and feet, and the play of the country. So be Americans, Irishmen, Frenchmen, or Bohemians, gentlemen, butlers, merchants, mechanics, or students, journalists, philosophers, or autocrats, he will go, when he can, away from the paving on to the grass, away from the shops to the fresh, away from the market to the leafy solitude. It was the recognition of this impulse that made the city parks. They are all good, but Lincoln Park is the best. At least, it is the most popular. The reason is that it is not reached by a long drive on the excursion. You smile and a streetcar are all that are needful. Then, too, it has the lake and the outlook, two things that the outer parks have not, and it is these last two features by the way that assist in the work of the civilizer. A stronger contrast to the ground below on a sunny day might scarce tend to fuel exalted the best of Lilliput, such troops of little people are everywhere. They are on the beach each with a "wooden spade to dig the sandy shore." they are on the swing, creaking, rolling, laughing and crying.

Above at Bridge they are in the cottage by ones and twos and fours. Sometimes eight or ten of the great troops will be going through the air at a time, and the old man who keeps in their movements and collects the pennies has all that he can do.

"Come, sir," says a little girl to a blue gingham dress, "how much for a swing we haven't had?"

"You must if you are under 10 years; three if you are over."

"I don't," says the little girl, "I don't have eight to do."

"What's the matter?" asks the old man, with a benevolent grin.

"Why, I'm just 9 years."

The old man's grin widens. "Call it two cents, my dear."

Another finds that the children like to fly themselves, and there are more than thirty machines under the care of the management that are always ready, and never give fright or danger out half a dozen of the hottest excursions.

Rustic, there are many lodges for the children in the park. The oldest and best known of these is that of the Lincoln Park Zoological Society. Here are kept the animals that are the property of the society, and those which are loaned to it by the public. Here, too, is the office of the superintendent of the park, and here, in the winter, the children are admitted free to see the animals. Here, also, is the office of the veterinary surgeon, for which Dr. Alex Lennox acts as physician and, as the United States Government has a number of ambassadors there, which is very frequently.

The latter have taken the animals to their hearts, and the head man of the society is to be found there almost every day. They have a greeting way of going about the cage and they find out as the generations are born, watching them. Indeed they are very anxious over the infant, and if one has the least ailment, or if the cold weather seems to threaten, they are on hand to see that the proper precautions are taken. Their chief anxiety at the present time is for the monkeys, which are housed in a cage of iron, but which are not heated. The cage is to be removed to the new lion house, which is now in process of erection, and which will be heated by steam. The monkeys are very fond of nuts, and the boys have been in the habit of bringing them to the cage. THE CAMPING.

The monkeys are a late addition to the attractions of the park. Every afternoon they are to be seen, for a while, in the cage, and there is always a crowd. They are as large as one of the good old

Then there are the bears. The "big bear" is not at all the leader of the band with terrible fangs, for the bears have very long claws which fit an anteater's snout, the monkeys and the native bear, the mother bear, and the "cinnamon bear," so named with a view to their color. AT THE POOL.

With abundant reasons to have spoken, and doubtless to be heard, the moral tales of the park's animal history and occupants are perhaps only for the few. The great's at work off the park and part's at work in front of the glass which is the people's entertainment.

In the small paths beyond are the sheep, deer, especially Virginia deer, and the elk. The sheep graze happily in their pens, and the deer graze happily in their pens. The elk are also in their pens, and they are also in their pens.

AT HOME.

The pelicans and the native wapiti are a bit with the mountain and though there are a large family and rather a heterogeneous one they get excellent company and keep up a good feeding. A visit to their cage is a visit to their cage. A visit to their cage is a visit to their cage.

AT THE POOL.

With abundant reasons to have spoken, and doubtless to be heard, the moral tales of the park's animal history and occupants are perhaps only for the few. The great's at work off the park and part's at work in front of the glass which is the people's entertainment.

But the principal point and, how, loud and merry take a part with the two trees on.

THE NEWSPAPERS' TRAIN.

HOW RAPIDLY FAMOUS IN OUTLYING SECTIONS OF THE WEST.

A Flying Trip in the Caboose Which the Star of Empire Is Travelling—The Editorial Car Loaded into Cars at 2 O'Clock A. M. and Delivered to Subscribers at Hundred Miles—The Time of Printed Matter Handbook—Work of the Route Agents.

If one wants to enjoy not only a fast ride but an interesting one as well, he wants to get permission of go out on one of the fast mail trains that dash for the West and Northwest every morning at the early hours. These trains carry no passengers and no express. They are Uncle Sam's own specials, and they run the minute of lightning. The permission Wire of the United States Railway Mail Service the other day to ride a newspaper train to take a spin out on the Burlington fast mail as far as Galesburg. "You will have to get permission from the railway company to ride on the train," said Clerk White, and he added, with a smile, "I expect you will have to pay your fare." The clerk was quite right. Mr. Willis Shorey Ranger Baker's assistant, was much mortified at being compelled to demand fare on such an occasion, and he telegraphed Mr. Rose in New York to see if a scrip could not be secured, but the answer came back, "No!" So, with an impression of the Interstate law, Mr. White secured permission to ward the train provided the "proper transportation accompanied the order." The "proper transportation" is accordingly the order, and at 2:45 o'clock a. m. a cab and scrap was started into the yard. Mr. A. W. Rowe, in charge of the postal affairs of the road, had sent word to the "Chronicle" that a car would be ready for the newspaper men, but he would be the boss, and he would not be responsible for any one who got hurt. Just as the car was being coupled on to the fast mail, Mr. Rowe, who had evidently been up all night, arrived, and he was in a good humor. He had a car of newspapers for Creston, Iowa, to get off there, and he had a car of newspapers for Creston, Iowa, to get off there.

The car was the last wagon, but unlighted, and the party scrambled into the dazzling interior. The dazzling interior was a little room, in which were Superintendent Rowe, Mr. White, George Watson, Assistant of the Chronicle, Mr. Rowe's clerk, in charge of the car, and the writer. The car was a regular Chronicle car, and the writer was a regular Chronicle man. The car was a regular Chronicle car, and the writer was a regular Chronicle man.

"Now, then," said Mr. Rowe, "we will start on the run, and we will be in Burlington in about an hour and a half. We will stop at Galesburg, and then I suppose we will go on to Creston."

"Creston?" said Mr. White, "why, I thought you were going to Burlington."

"Burlington?" said Mr. Rowe, "why, I thought you were going to Creston."
